PUBLIC SCHOOLS CLOSE FRIDAY FOR DEFENSE DAY

McSherrystown Firemen Decide To Participate In Parade In A Body.

The public schools of Gettysburg from the first grade to the Senior class of the high school will end their sessions early Friday afternoon in order to allow the pupils to participate in the parade, which is to be one of the main features of Defense Day, September 12.

This announcement was made this morning by Professor Walter D. Reynolds, supervising principal of the Gettysburg public schools. Mr. Reynolds would set no definite hour for the dismissal of the schools Friday afternoon, but announced that it would be in time for the children to participate in the parade, which forms at the Meade school building and starts at 3 o'clock.

Want Creditable Showing

Members of the citizens-military committee, in charge of Adams county's observance of Defense Day, are anxious that this county's showing be a creditable one. Figures on the enrollment for the day will be telegraphed to the War Department at Washington, D. C., in the evening, their to be compiled with hundreds of thousands of reports from other communities throughout the country.

With the school of Gettysburg closing in time for the parade, it is thought likely that many of the schools in the near and outlying districts will close for the afternoon or part of it at least.

With the schools, many business places and industries in Gettysburg and throughout the county are expected to close Friday afternoon, so as to allow all men within the military ages—18 to 45 years—and all women who desire, to join in the observance of the day in Gettysburg, designated as the hub of Adams county's mobilization. Since the regular closing hour for banks is three o'clock, which is coincident with the start of the parade, these institutions here will not close, but work will be hurried through so as to allow the employees to participate in the activities of the afternoon.

Coolidge's Statement

President Coolidge, who is a strong supporter of Defense Day plans, says that "instead of being a military gesture, this plan is the exact opposite. It is a non-militaristic gesture for the purpose of keeping down to the lowest possible point the professional military organizations of the United States."

"Our country has always relied chiefly for its defense upon the readiness of its patriotic manhood to take up arms when necessity presented. Defense Day is intended to bring to the people a reminder of their dependence upon this skeleton establishment in case our country is attacked. There can be no doubt failure to prepare for the possibility of war, at a time when that possibility was really imminent, resulted in great hardships, unnecessary expense, and the unjustifiable prolongation of the World War."

"What is proposed for September 12 is merely in compliance with the purposes of the national defense law of 1920. It is not a mobilization, and the people who first attached to it the term 'Mobilization Day' and then proceeded to condemn it, have been utterly unfair. Most of them, I am sure, have been innocent of intent to be unfair, but they have been misled."

For One Day Only

Persons in Adams county who enroll for Defense Day, will be mustered out of service as soon as exercises on the Gettysburg College campus, following the parade, are ended. It has been requested that persons visiting in Gettysburg and Adams county enroll for the day here so that this county's quota may rank proportionately with the best.

On Tuesday evening, the first company in McSherrystown held a special meeting in which they took action to attend the Defense Day activities in Gettysburg in a body. With the McSherrystown delegation coming the Boys' Band from the Paradise Protectorate, near Abbottstown.

STATE AID FOR BRIDGES SOUGHT

Washington County Commissioner Declares State Should Build Or Render Aid In Building Bridges.

Bridges over streams on State highways should be built by the State or by the State and county jointly, declared J. W. Walker, county commissioner of Washington county, Tuesday in the president's address, opening the thirty-eighth annual convention of the Pennsylvania County Commissioners at Reading.

C. A. Hershey, president of the Adams county commissioners, and the commissioners' clerk, Raymond Deardorff, left Tuesday afternoon to attend the sessions of the county commissioners' association convention. Most of the problems discussed at the meeting are of vital interest to assessors and tax collectors in Adams county.

County Pays Cost

"The county must pay all the costs of bridges over streams, now," said Mr. Walker. "Since bridges in many cases are over highways that the State assumed are important enough for the Commonwealth to pay out of State funds, it seems to me that bridges over streams over the routes should be built from the same funds. I am not criticizing the State administration, but if we don't do something soon they will keep shoving things down our throats."

Henry M. Stine, of Dauphin county, chairman of the committee of legislation, reported that a bill would be presented to the next Legislature which would abolish property assessors in every voting district and would place the work on a central board.

Legislative Plans

The measures sponsored by the legislative committee, which was successful in having two bills enacted into law by the 1922 Legislature, and which were considered today provide for the following:

Amendment permitting county commissioners to name one or more collectors of county taxes in third-class cities, with optional commission, not to exceed five per cent. Bills to create county board of three assessors with necessary assistants to be appointed by court or county commissioners with option to third-class city councils to name one member and then accept county board's assessment for municipal taxation.

The suggested law for an assessment system would abolish the present method of one property assessor in each district in the county placing the entire valuation work upon a board of three members to be named by the commissioners or the court. Instead of compelling third-class city councils to accept the fixed valuations it will be optional with the respective municipalities.

PASTOR STARTS CHURCH QUERIES

Rev. Harry Daniels Sends Questionnaires To Gettysburgians, Relative To Church Choice.

SERIES OF SERMONS

A unique series of sermons is promised at the Gettysburg Methodist Episcopal Church as a result of the sending of questionnaires to 200 representative business and professional men of town, asking that they inform the Rev. Harry Daniels, pastor, what topics they would like to hear discussed from the pulpit.

In the opening paragraph of his letter to the 200 business and professional men, the Rev. Mr. Daniels says he is "trying to arrange a series of sermons to be preached some time during the autumn or winter on subjects that are especially interesting to the business people of Gettysburg and community."

Four questions, which the minister asks the recipient to answer, returning the filled-in questionnaire to him so that he may prepare and announce his series of sermons to be preached on those subjects closest to the life and conduct of business and professional men of this community.

The four questions asked by the minister in his survey are:

"Do you belong to a church? If not, which church is the church of your choice?"

"In your opinion what would increase the attendance of business people at church services?"

"What particular subjects would you like to hear discussed from the pulpit?"

"If the subject you are interested in is discussed would you come to hear the sermon?"

Seeks Feeling

In further explanation of his reason for sending the questionnaires and getting his hand on the business and professional pulse of Gettysburg, Rev. Mr. Daniels said:

"I am anxious to know just what the business and professional men would like to hear discussed from the pulpit, but more than that I am interested in bringing a new and deeper sense of morality into the dealings of business and professional men with their customers and clients. What part morals really plays in the rather cut-and-dried subjects of economics is another factor which enters into the question."

Rev. Mr. Daniels has announced that replies to his questions will be treated with the utmost confidence and that the names of men returning the filled-in letters will not be mentioned from the pulpit during the series or in connection with any one of the sermons.

ADVERTISE TOWN IN EMPIRE STATE

Efforts Of Local Hotelmen's Association Already Show Positive Results.

Through the efforts of the Gettysburg Hotelmen's Association there appeared in the rotogravure section of last Sunday's Buffalo Times a full page, devoted to pictures of Gettysburg's famous battlefield and scenes in the immediate vicinity. This publicity, which is considered invaluable for Gettysburg, since the Buffalo Sunday Times has a wide circulation in western New York and south-eastern Canada, territory within easy access of Gettysburg by perfect roads, was paid for by the management of the Hotel Gettysburg, the Eagle Hotel and the Hoffman Hotel, the three comprising the Gettysburg Hotelmen's Association.

In addition to the full page in the colored section of the Buffalo Times, there appeared a news story about Gettysburg and the roads from the north leading to it. Three other news stories will appear in succeeding Sunday editions of that paper.

Numerous Views

Besides panoramas of various sections of the battlefield, a view of Buchanan Valley from the Lincoln Highway, a picture of the first tee of the Caledonia golf course at Graeffenburg and a scene on the Harrisburg-Gettysburg road, pictures of the New York State and National memorials in the National Cemetery, the Virginia State memorial on Confederate avenue, showing Robert E. Lee on his horse, Traveler, the 42nd New York Regiment memorial, and a view on Hancock avenue, showing the Pennsylvania and Minnesota memorials are shown.

Result Seen

That the publicity has not been without result is shown by the fact that one of the three hotels received five letters asking for further information about the battlefield from persons in and near Buffalo, who mentioned that they saw the pictures of the field in the Buffalo Times.

MISSIONARY DIES IN FOREIGN FIELD

Cablegram To Mrs. O. D. McMillan Tells Of Death Of Rev. Dr. Philo M. Buck.

A cablegram from Mussoorie, India, received by Mrs. O. D. McMillan, South Stratton street, Tuesday afternoon, tells of the death of the Rev. Dr. Philo M. Buck, a missionary in India for the Methodist Episcopal church for 52 years.

Rev. Dr. Buck, whose death occurred Monday, was 79 years of age, and was born and received his early education in Kansas, in which state he was licensed as a minister in the Methodist Episcopal church.

Rev. Dr. Buck was well-known in Gettysburg, having visited here during furloughs from his missionary work. He has spoken at the Lutheran Theological Seminary and on several occasions addressed the congregation at the local Methodist Episcopal church.

He was an authority on missionary work in India and had written several books on the subject. These works are taken as standard writings on the subject about which Rev. Dr. Buck was so thoroughly acquainted through long contact.

Rev. Dr. Buck's wife, who, with one daughter survives, was Miss Carrie McMillan, sister-in-law of Mrs. O. D. McMillan here. Mrs. Harold Wilkie, also of Mussoorie, India, is the daughter. Rev. and Mrs. Wilkie were visitors in Gettysburg last spring. Both were on furloughs in this country and both spoke at the Methodist Episcopal church here. They were guests of Mrs. McMillan during their stay.

According to Mrs. McMillan, Rev. Dr. Buck will be buried in the country in which he labored so long and faithfully.

Recently Rev. and Mrs. Buck celebrated their fiftieth, or golden wedding anniversary.

FLOWERS COLOR STATE HIGHWAYS

300,000 Vines Will Bloom On Scarred And Cut-In Roads, According To Announcement Today.

Pennsylvania highways will resemble city parkways, lined with gardens of blooms, within a few years, Chief Engineer William H. Connell, of the highway department, announced today. The department is planning to cover the rough spots along highways with flowers, grasses, vines and shrubs.

Yellow scars left in the earth by cuts or fills in road making and location will form the center of the gardening activities of the highway department which will work with the state forestry and agriculture departments. Secretary of Highways Wright announced that approximately 300,000 vines will be required to beautify the highways and instructions have been given to district engineers to make requisitions for the plants.

The department plans to beautify the roadside with wild roses, ramblers and creeper roses, the matrimony vine, which blossoms yellow in the spring; the kutzuv vine with its colorful berries; bush blossoms, snow berries, Japanese barberry and the liberty iris which has a lavender blossom.

For slope planting the department will use grasses. These will include orchard grass, pink alsike clover, blue hairy vetch, purple alfalfa and yellow caccaria. These will be used with meadow fescue, tall meadow cut grass, Canada blue grass and perennial ryegrass. In planting the berms or shoulders of the road the department will use Kentucky blue grass, red top, red fescue, alsike clover, perennial ryegrass and white clover.

"At comparatively small cost," said Engineer Connell, Pennsylvania highways can be given a parkway resemblance. There is no reason why the state's many marvelous miles of scenic splendors should be marred by unsightly cuts or fills and naked shoulders."

Nathan Leopold And Richard Loeb Are Unaffected As Court Pronounces Sentence That Saves Them From The Gallows; Crowds Gather In Front Of Jail; No Disturbances.

(By Associated Press.)

Criminal Court Building, Chicago, Sept. 10.—Sentences of life imprisonment for the murder of 14-year-old Robert Franks and 99 years imprisonment for kidnapping the boy were meted out today to Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb by Judge John R. Caverly. The youth of the defendants, 18 and 19 years was all that saved them from the noose.

"It would have been the path of least resistance to impose the extreme penalty of the law," said the Judge in his decision. "In choosing imprisonment instead of death the court is moved chiefly by the age of the defendants, boys of 18 and 19 years."

FLIERS REMAIN IN CAPITAL FOR "DEFENSE DAY"

Washington, Sept. 10.—Decision to keep the world fliers in Washington until Defense Day, Friday, September 12, was announced today by Major General Patrick chief of army air service.

Under new arrangement the next hop for Dayton, scheduled for tomorrow will be postponed until Saturday. It was emphasized that the delay is due to the desire of the aviators to participate in the Defense Day tests in the National Capital.

14 YEAR OLD BOY KILLS "GRANDMA"

(By Associated Press.)

Pottsville Sept. 10.—William Cavellier, 14, is being held by state police for the murder of his grandmother, Mrs. Peter Cavellier, 62, who was also his adopted mother whom he confessed he shot to death last Saturday and then concealed her body in a locked room at the home. The boy does not seem to comprehend the enormity of his crime and has no hesitancy in telling the police the story of the killing.

YORK BOXER HAS MURDER HEARING

(By Associated Press.)

York, Sept. 10.—Accused of murdering Mrs. William Abbott, Fred "Sailor Kid" McLean, a boxer, was given a hearing today and held for the action of the grand jury.

When taken before the aldermen the defendant was told that Leopold and Loeb had been sentenced to life imprisonment. In the sentence the accused man said he saw a ray of hope that his own life would be spared.

Better job printing is done cheaper by The Gettysburg Times. adv. 1.

"It is not for the court to say that he will not in any case enforce capital punishment, but he believes it is within his province to decline to impose the sentence of death on persons who are not of full age."

"This determination appears to be in accordance with the progress of criminal law all over the world and to the dictate of enlightened humanity. More than that it seems to be in accordance with the precedent in this state. The records of Illinois show only 2 cases of minors who were put to death by legal process, to which number the court does not feel inclined to make an addition."

An immense crowd gathered around entrance of jail when decision became known. A score of motor cycle police lined up both sides of street to hold the people in check. The crowd was silent and merely stood about watching the jail doors. Finally the crowd was convinced it would see nothing and it dispersed.

Sheriff Threatened
Sheriff P. M. Hoff announced that he had received telephone calls giving warning that an attack would be made on his party when he conveyed the youths to the penitentiary. Leopold and Loeb were unaffected by the morning's development and they ordered steak two inches thick with every side dish they could think of.

"It may be the last good meal we may get in our lives," they said.

Judge Caverly added that while life imprisonment "may not strike the public imagination as forcibly as would hanging, yet to the offenders, particularly of the type they are, the prolonged suffering of years of confinement may well be the severer form of retribution."

Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney in a formal statement, said "I still believe that the death penalty is the only penalty feared by the murderers."

"It was all we could have asked for," said Clarence S. Darrow, chief counsel for the defense.

"There will be no appeal."

Father Affected
Nathan Leopold, Sr., sat silently weeping in the courtroom. He offered no comment and merely nodded his head when friends grouped about him and whispered in his ear.

Foreman Leopold, Nathan's older brother, relaxed visibly as the Judge reached the words in his statement which meant life imprisonment for the youths. He had sat with tense face as the Judge read from his manuscript.

He refused to comment and merely smiled as friends crowded about and spoke to members of the Leopold group.

After sentence had been pronounced Nathan Leopold, Sr., father of one of the defendants, said he would never attempt to obtain the release of his son from the penitentiary.

Nathan Leopold, Sr., shortly afterward recovered his composure, opened his cigar case and passed cigars to members of his group as they passed from the room.

Franks Family Silent

Edwin Gresham, uncle of the murdered victim, the only member of the Franks family in the courtroom refused to comment on the sentences. He shook his head in refusal when asked for the view of the Franks' family on the justice of the sentences.

Darrow said parole could be applied for after 20 years of a life sentence had been served, but thought that it required 37½ years of imprisonment before parole could be applied for under a sentence of 99 years in the penitentiary.

Clean Films To Raise Fiction Tone

Los Angeles.—That the salacious and suggestive in modern fiction has received a body blow in the recent edict against the use of such material in motion pictures by Will H. Hays, president of the Association of Motion Picture Producers, is the opinion expressed here by M. C. Levee, head of the United Studios.

Levee supported his statement with the argument that since authors frequently receive more money for film rights to their works than from regular publication sources, they soon will begin to realize that unless their stories are built without objectionable situations and themes a very lucrative avenue of revenue will be closed to them.

HAS RECORD YEAR FOR FRUIT CROPS

Zurich, Switzerland.—Fruits from the Swiss valleys have been exported this year on a larger scale than in any other period. Many of these shipments have gone to Germany where there is a big demand for fruits of all kinds, and where the Swiss exporters found a ready sale for much of their produce now that the Renten mark has replaced the worthless paper currency.

According to provisional estimates compiled here Switzerland this year will have an excess of about 16,000 car loads of cider fruit, 8,000 cars of eating apples, 10,000 tons of plums and 1,500 tons of walnuts for exportation. Paris and London as usual took a large share of the Swiss fruit crop.

Sorrow which is never spoken is the heaviest load to bear. Reading without thinking may, indeed, make a rich commonplace, but 'twill never make a clear head.

PAROLED CONVICT GETS 3 MORE YRS

Bank Thief Must Serve Balance Of Term In Sing Sing; Is Only 22 Years Of Age.

New York, Sept. 10.—Bernard A. Marron, 32 years old, bank robber, diamond thief and convict, was sentenced to a three-year term in the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta by Federal Judge Foster Tuesday. He pleaded guilty to robbing a lower Manhattan branch of the Capital National Bank of $15,000.

Marron, police said, has had a spectacular criminal career. When he was 16 he was sent to the reformatory for burglary. Released a year later, he returned $27,000 which he had taken from a Wall street brokerage house, which had employed him, and escaped with a suspended sentence. In May, 1919, he walked off with $100,000 worth of diamonds belonging to his employers and for this was sentenced to ten years in Sing Sing. Good behavior brought a parole at the end of 4 1/2 years.

On completion of the sentence imposed today Marron must finish his Sing Sing term. The bank robbery was accomplished within a week after he had obtained a position in the place with references stolen from a job-seeking bank clerk, who had forwarded them in answer to an advertisement.

He was arrested in a Chicago newspaper office last July as he was about to insert another advertisement, his second in that city, in an effort to obtain references to be used in obtaining a position in a Chicago bank.

Lancaster Farmers To Sell New Seed Wheat

Lancaster, Sept. 10.—Farmers of Lancaster county, the "Garden Spot of the World," plan to market their crop of seed wheat cooperatively this fall. The growers have named the Commodity Division of the Farm Bureau, a farmer-controlled cooperative, as their selling agency, and a nationwide selling campaign is planned. This is the first cooperative marketing venture to have been undertaken by this group of growers who have been purchasing farm supplies cooperatively for a number of years.

A new variety of wheat, Forward, was grown by the farmers of this county under the supervision of the local farm bureau and subject to a rigid inspection by the county agent. The new strain is said to be ideally adapted to all parts of Pennsylvania. It has been developed from the same Fulcaster family in which the famous "Pennsylvania 44" had its origin, making the new wheat a "step-brother" to the variety developed by Professor C. F. Noll, of the Pennsylvania State College. It is a beardless wheat, yields heavy in both grain and straw, and "stands up" under all conditions.

DEFENSE DAY

Once more Uncle Sam rallies his loyal sons to the colors. But this time, as a test of the strength of the fighting forces of this, the greatest country on earth.

On Friday, more than 5,000,000 men, ranging in age from 18 years upward,
will rally to the red, white and blue, just to show Uncle Sam that if at any time he is confronted with an embarassing duty, he will find ready response from his sons.

Defense Day is not a recruiting day.
It is not a day devoted to arms and munitions as some are wont to classify it. It is a mobilization day test. The United States expects to know just how many fighting men she can muster in event of an emergency. So with this in mind, a day has been set aside, the anniversary of the St. Mihiel offensive, to ascertain just how many men are available. There isn't a bit of boliga-tion attached to the day's observance.
No one will be asked to don a uniform and shoulder a rifle. It is a case of getting out with the rest of the regular he-men as a demonstration of your loyalty to this grand and glorious country.

Gettysburg will do its share. That is assured. The Adams county observance will center here and it is expected that one of the largest turnouts of available fighters will be on hand when the monster parade starts.
Uncle Sam's call to the colors will be responded too with a vim in Adams county.

JUST FOLKS

By Edgar A. Guest

THE LIE

My uncle is a goodly man, no great
sin mars his life
But once when he was very young he
lied unto his wife
To save a lengthy argument, "On business, dear," said he,
"I shall be kept down town tonight, so do not wait for me."
Then he played cards till 10 o'clock,
and chuckled soft and low
To think he'd got away with it, and Aunt would never know.

My aunt was a trusting soul. She swallowed every word,
But when the morn broke bright and clear some startling things she heard,
A neighbor's wife dropped in to chat
and settling in a chair
Said she: "Next Sunday I suppose a bonnet new you'll wear?"
Your husband had good luck last night,
from what I understand Jack paid him forty cents to see four aces in his hand."

My aunt could not believe her ears,
she blushed a blush for shame,
Then later on unto her door another neighbor came
And just to make a little talk, said
dear old Mrs. Bragg:
"I hear your husband won last night at Billy Bonson's stag."
All through the day where'er she went from all she chanced to meet
She got the information of my uncle's first deceit.

My uncle is a goodly man, no great
sin mars his life
But once when he was very young he
lied unto his wife,
And though 'twas forty years ago, she looks on him with doubt
And oft reminds him of the time she found his baseness out.
Yes, though 'twas forty years ago,
still uncle sadly wails
That half the trouble of this world is caused by tattle-tales.

ALL OUT OF SORTS?

So Was This Gettysburg Woman Who Tells Her Experience.

All too often women accept their pains and aches as natural to their sex. They fail to realize that weak kidneys are often to blame for that backache, those headaches, dizzy spells and that tired, depressed feeling. Thousands have found new health and strength by helping the weakened kidneys with Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic. This Gettysburg case is one of many:

Mrs. Charles Kappes, 229 N. Stratton St., says: "Heavy pains in the small of my back gave me no end of trouble. Mornings I felt stiff and sore and this made it hard for me to get around. Dizziness came on often. My kidneys were weak, too. I got Doan's Pills from the People's Drug Store, and they rid me of the backache and did away with the other signs of kidney trouble."

Price 60c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Pills—the same that Mrs. Kappes had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

MUSICIAN OUT OF TUNE

"Gas pressure in my stomach sometimes distressed me so that I could not think. I played out of tune and twice lost my position. No medicine helped me and I became disheartened. Another musician advised me to try Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, and I am now enjoying the best of health." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. At Peoples drug store and drugists everywhere. Adv.

SYNOPSIS

Sir Oliver Trevelian is betrothed to Rosamund Godolphin, but the marriage is opposed by Rosamund's brother, Peter, and her guardian, Sir John Killigrew. When Oliver's young half-brother, Lionel, kills Peter in a quarrel suspicion falls on Oliver. A trail of blood is found leading from the body to his doorway. Even Rosamund believes him guilty. Desiring to protect Lionel, Oliver can only protest his innocence; but he obtains from the justices a document, to be produced in case of trial, attesting to the fact that he bears no mark of recent wound; that therefore the trail of blood, obviously that of the murderer, is not his. A few weeks later trial threatens; and Lionel, crazed with fear that Oliver will reveal the truth, hires a pirate sea captain, Jasper Leigh, to abduct him and sell him as a galley-slave. With Oliver's disappearance it is assumed he has fled to escape trial. His ship, the Swallow, is along the coast of Portugal when Leigh orders his prisoner brought before him. He offers for a price to take Oliver back to England.

Sir Oliver looked at him and smiled grimly.

"Now what a rogue are you that can keep faith with none!" he cried. "First you take money to carry me off; and then you bid me pay you to carry me back again."

"Ye wrong me, sir, I vow ye do! I can keep faith when honest men employ me, and ye should know it, Sir Oliver. But who keeps faith with rogues is a fool—and that I am not, as ye should also know. I ha' done this thing that a rogue might be revealed to you and thwarted, as well as that I might make some little profit out of this ship o' mine. I am frank with ye, Sir Oliver. I ha' had some two hundred pound in money and trinkets from your brother. Give me the like and—"

But now of a sudden Sir Oliver's listlessness was all dispelled. It fell from him like a cloak, and he sat forward, wide awake and with some show of anger even.

"How do you say?" he cried, on a sharp, high note.

The captain stared at him, his pipe neglected.

"I say that if so be as ye'll pay me the same sum which your brother paid me to carry you off—"

"My brother?" roared the knight. "Do you say my brother?"

"I said your brother."

"Master Lionel!" the other demanded still.

"What other brothers have you?" quoth Master Leigh.

There fell a pause and Sir Oliver look straight before him, his head shaken a little between his shoulders.

"Let me understand," he said at length. "Do you say that my brother Lionel paid you money to carry me off—in short, that my presence aboard this foul hulk of yours is due to him?"

"Whom else had ye suspected? Or did ye think that I did it for my own personal diversion?"

"Answer me!" bellowed Sir Oliver, writhing in his bonds.

"I ha' answered you more than once already. Still, I tell you once again, since ye are slow to understand it, that I was paid a matter of two hundred pound by your brother, Master Lionel Trevelian, to carry you off to Barbary and there sell you for a slave. Is that plain to you?"

"As plain as it is false. You lie, you dog!"

"Softly, softly!" quoth Master Leigh good-humoredly.

"I say you lie!"

Master Leigh considered him a moment.

"Sets the wind so!" said he at length, and without another word he rose and went to a sea-chest ranged against the wooden wall of the cabin.

He opened it and took thence a leather bag. From this he produced a handful of jewels. He thrust them under Sir Oliver's nose.

"Haply," said he, "ye'll be acquainted with some of them. They was given me to make up the sum since your brother had not the whole two hundred pound in coin. Take a look at them."

Sir Oliver recognized a ring and a long pear-shaped pearl earring that had been his brother's; he recognized a medallion that he himself had given Lionel two years ago; and so, one by one, he recognized every trinket placed before him.

His head drooped to his breast, and he sat thus while like a man stunned.

"My God!" he groaned miserably, at last. "Who, then, is left me! Lionel too! Lionel!"

A sob shook the great frame. Two tears slowly trickled down that haggard face and were lost in the stubble of beard upon his chin. "I am cursed!" he said.

Never without such evidence could he have believed this thing. From the moment that he was beset outside the gates of Godolphin Court he had conceived it to be the work of Rosamund, and his listlessness was begotten of the thought that she could have suffered conviction of his guilt and her hatred of him to urge her to such lengths as these.

This conviction had been gall and wormwood to him; it had drugged his very senses, reducing him to a listless indifference to any fate that might be reserved him. Yet it had not been so bitter a draft as this present revelation. After all, in her case there were some grounds for the hatred that had come to take the place of her erstwhile love. But in Lionel's what grounds were possible? What motives could exist for such an action as this, other than a monstrous, a loathly egotism which desired perhaps to insure that the blame for the death of Peter Godolphin should not be shifted from the shoulders that were unjustly bearing it, and the accused desire to profit by the removal of the man who had been brother, father and all else to him?

He shuddered in sheer horror. It was incredible, and yet beyond a doubt it was true. For all the love which he had showered upon Lionel, for all the sacrifices of self which he had made to shield him, this was Lionel's return. Were all the world against him he still must have believed Lionel true to him, and in that belief must have been enheartened a little. And now—His sense of loneliness, of utter destitution overwhelmed him. Then slowly of his sorrow resentment was begotten, and being begotten it grew rapidly until it filled his mind and whelmed in its turn all else.

"Master Leigh," said he, "what is your price to carry me home again to England?"

"Why, Sir Oliver," said he, "I think the price I was paid to carry you off would be a fair one. The one would wipe out 'tother as it were."

"You shall have twice the sum when you land me on Trefusis point again," was the instant answer.

The captain's little eyes blinked and his shaggy red eyebrows came together in a frown. Here was too speedy an acquiescence. There must be guile behind it, or he knew nought of the ways of men.

"What mischief are ye brooding?" he sneered.

"Mischief, man? To you?" Sir Oliver laughed hoarsely. "God's light, knave, d'ye think I consider you in this matter, or d'ye think I've room in my mind for such petty resentments together with that other?"

It was the truth. So absolute was the bitter sway of his anger against Lionel that he could give no thought to this rascally seaman's share in the adventure.

"Will ye give me your word for that?"

"My word? Pshaw, man! I have given it already. I swear that you shall be paid the sum I've named the moment you set me ashore again in England. Is that enough for you? Then cut me these bonds, and let us make an end of my present condition."

"Faith, I am glad to deal with so sensible a man! Ye take it in the proper spirit. Ye see that what I ha' done I ha' but done in the way of my calling, that I am but a tool, and that what blame there be belongs to them which hired me to this deed."

"Aye, ye're but a tool—a dirty tool, whetted with gold, no more. 'Tis admitted. Cut me these bonds, a God's name! I'm weary o' being trussed like a capon."

The captain drew his knife, crossed to Sir Oliver's side and slashed his bonds away without further word. Sir Oliver stood up so suddenly that he smote his head against the low ceiling of the cabin and so sat down again at once. And in that moment from without and above there came a cry which sent the skipper to the cabin door. He flung it open, and so let out the smoke and let in the sunshine. He passed out on to the poop-deck, and Sir Oliver—conceiving himself at liberty to do so—followed him.

In the waist below a little knot of shaggy seamen were crowding to the larboard bulwarks, looking out to sea; on the fore-castle there was another similar assembly, all staring intently ahead and toward the land.
